Enriching puppies lives in Camden City at one of NJAFA's free shot clinics

SUCCESS STORY

NORTON aka "Snort"

While driving through Camden, it is very common to see little puppies foraging for food and water. They don't belong to anyone and have somehow managed to seek out a life on these unforgiving streets. NJAFA, while on a trip to Camden to pick up animals for altering, saw this little guy loping along the street searching in garbage cans.

We scooped him up and took him to wait at the shelter for 7 days. No one, of course, claimed him, but because he was so gangly and goofy, we named him "Norton" like the character in the old "Honeymooners" series.
