VMS honors heroes

By ROBERT LINNEHAN
The Voorhees Sun

The sixth-grade students at Voorhees Middle School honored parents, teachers, and public servants as heroes last week. These everyday people were celebrated at the ninth annual Voorhees Middle School Heroes Banquet.

The heroes filled the middle school auditorium for the annual celebration.

The event was started as a healing response after the attacks of 9/11, said Noreen Saggese, sixth grade teacher, as she welcomed the hundreds of visitors to the school.

The banquet was Saggese's creation and for the first time ever she nominated a hero.

In fact, she nominated two heroes, she said, because both of these people had a great impact on her life.

The first was her doctor, Brian Czerniecki, who treated her and helped her cope with a breast cancer diagnosis that she received the day before last year's banquet.

The second nomination, she said, was her nephew Bobby O'Hearn who achieved his Eagle Scout ranking this past year. Saggese couldn't attend his ceremony because of her chemotherapy treatments.

More than 150 heroes were honored at the event. Each sixth grader who nominated a hero presented them with a written essay and a hero's pin, which they put on their hero in front of the assembled crowd.

All of the personal essays will be displayed in a Hall of Heroes at the school. The students also raised more than $500 for UNICEF as well.

"It's wonderful to be nominated. I was honored and it's nice to have the recognition," said Pina Disalvatore, a paramedic nominated by Alex Mejia, 12. "I was nominated because of my work as a first responder at ground zero during the 9-11 attacks."

The auditorium was decorated with hundreds of handcrafted stars the students had created, each bearing the name of their personal hero.

The sixth grade band, orchestra, and a special performance from local singer Rocco Fiorentino entertained the heroes during the celebration. Fiorentino, a middle school student, was nominated as a hero when he was in the fourth grade.

Assemblyman Louis Greenwald was the event's keynote speaker and congratulated all of the heroes in attendance. It's an honor to be nominated, he said, as he was nominated last year by his daughter.

"My daughter is my greatest inspiration, as you all are (the students) for those that you have nominated," Greenwald said.

The highlight of the day was when the students were given the opportunity to give their heroes pins and present them with their essays. As the heroes hugged their students, the sound of laughter and tears filled the auditorium.

Earlene Ross, whose son Kevin Ross Jr. nominated his father Kevin Ross Sr., said it was heartwarming that so many students nominated their parents as heroes. Earlene was filling in for Kevin Ross Sr., as he couldn't attend the event.

"It's a great idea for these kids. They get to think about normal people as the real heroes in their lives," she said.

Virtua pump station to improve sewer service

By ROBERT LINNEHAN
The Voorhees Sun

Thanks to a $10 million pump station from the Virtua Hospital, businesses west of Route 73 will have improved sewer services and the township will be able to do away with several tricky pump stations that have been malfunctioning for the past few years.

The Township Committee approved an ordinance on first reading that will run a line from the newly constructed pump station at Dutchtown Road under Route 73 to the west side of the roadway. The new hospital paid for the pump station.

The township will pay for the $400,000 sewer line if approved on second reading.

Township Administrator Larry Spellman said Voorhees representatives looked at constructing a new pump station in the early 1990s but deemed it to be too expensive. No township tax dollars are being used to build this new station, he said, it's all funded by Virtua.

With this new pump station at Dutchtown Road, Spellman said the oft-malfunctioning Cooper Road pump station would be taken offline. The new pump station will easily be able to handle the waste previously processed by the Cooper Road station.

Two years ago the Cooper Road station malfunctioned during the Thanksgiving holiday, Spellman said, and trucks had to be brought in to manually pump the waste from the station to the Camden County sewer system.

"The amount of overtime for that was just unbelievable," Spellman said. "The pump station was way over capacity."

The new pump station will also allow the Sturbridge Lakes station to come offline in 5 to 10 years. A gravity line will be installed to service the Sturbridge Lakes neighborhood, Spellman said, which is less costly for the township and more energy efficient.

The station was recently refurbished so it would not make sense to take it offline presently, he said.

In other township news:

■ For the upcoming baseball season, the Township Committee approved $270,000 on first reading for the installation of a turf infield at the Rabinowitz baseball field.

The heavily used field will receive a turf infield, Spellman said, hopefully by the start of baseball season in March. The field is used from March to November of each year, he said, with hundreds of games played each year.

The baseball league will be paying $5,000 to $10,000 for the bond ordinance each year to help pay for the field, Spellman said.

"The new filament fiber fields haven't worn out yet, so we're not sure how long it will last," Spellman said. "Professionals say the fields can last 10 to 15 years, but it could last even longer."

As for health concerns with turf fields, Spellman said neither the Environmental Protection Agency nor the Occupational Safety and Health Administration warned the township of any negative effects the field may have on its athletes.

Eastern heads back in time to the Farnsworth Invention

Before TV dinners, Emmy Awards and Primetime there was the Farnsworth Invention.

It's 1921 and two visionaries race each other to invent a device called "television." Separated by 2,000 miles, each knows that if he stops working, even for a moment, the other will gain the edge. Who will unlock the key to the greatest innovation of the 20th century: the ruthless media mogul, or the self-taught Idaho farm boy?

The answer comes to life in The Farnsworth Invention, the play from Aaron Sorkin, creator of The West Wing, and presented by the Theater Department of Eastern Regional High Schools on Nov. 18, at 7 p.m., Nov. 19 at 7:30 p.m., and Nov. 20, at 2 and 7:30 p.m., at the Eastern Center for the Performing Arts, 1401 Laurel Oak Road.

The Farnsworth Invention centers on the conflict that pitted Philo T. Farnsworth who invented the principles of television as a ninth-grade farm boy, against David Sarnoff, the head of the Radio Corporation of America (RCA) and the founder of the National Broadcasting Company (NBC).

Director Gregg Molotsky, a 15-year veteran of the school's theater program, is excited to be working on a production that spans 20 years and involves many students playing multiple characters.

"Sorkin is one of the best contemporary American writers. From his work on the West Wing and his current movie, The Social Network, Sorkin often focuses on how the work of a few dedicated individuals has changed the world, be it through the invention of television ... or Facebook. Our students can relate to young people who bring big ideas to fruition, and how technology has changed their own lives," noted Molotsky.

Admission is $6. All seats are reserved and box office hours are available by calling 784-4441 x6000, or students may purchase tickets during the day at the Eastern school store.

Go beyond the pitbull myth

Deirdre Franklin, founder of Pinups for Pit bulls, announced today that she and Kathy McGuire, president of New Jersey Aid For Animals (NJFAA), are hosting the New Jersey premiere of the feature length documentary, Beyond the Myth: A Film About Pit Bulls and Breed Discrimination on Sunday, Nov. 21 at 4 p.m., at the Raven (formerly Ritz) Theater at Eagle Plaza, Voorhees.

Beyond the Myth is a film about dogs commonly referred to as pit bulls and those who love and defend these breeds.

It explores the contributing factors behind the public's generalized fear of pit bulls, and examines the conflict existing between advocates and opponents of breed discriminatory laws, commonly referred to as breed bans.

It investigates the myths associated with the breed, challenges the idea that they are inherently vicious, and presents eye-opening research regarding the media's role in influencing people's opinion on "pit bulls."

Libby Sherrill, the filmmaker, first decided to tackle the film as a grad student.

Three years later, her theme has been honed to reveal the perils of breed-specific legislation as carried out in three cities that ban pit bull-type dogs:

Denver, Miami, and Cincinnati

– along with San Francisco, which requires the animals to be spayed and neutered.

Denver enforces their ban more stringently than most, killing close to 4,000 pit bull-type dogs since 1989.

Those who have lost their dogs as result of these laws have endured excruciating heartbreak. Beyond the Myth reveals one such story – that of Desiree and her family pet Coco.

Despite being nicknamed "Colocicious," by Denver Animal Control kennel workers for his gentle and loving nature, Coco was killed simply because of the way he looked. He never harmed anyone.

"There is no evidence that laws aimed towards specific breeds decrease the number of dangerous dogs in communities and yet innocent dogs continue to die because of these ordinances. Our efforts and laws should be directed towards irresponsible people – we need more education regarding responsible dog ownership instead of allowing confiscation and murder of good family pets," says Sherrill. Taxpayers also suffer when breed-discriminatory laws are enacted. According to the study, "The Fiscal Impact of Breed Discriminatory Legislation in the United States," conducted by the New York City-based John Dunham and Associates, such legislation would cost the state of New Jersey an estimated $13,396,830 per year, a number includes the costs of enforcement, kenneling, veterinary care, euthanasia and disposal, litigation, and DNA testing.

In order to create safer communities, Pinups for Pitbulls and NJFAA advocate for breed-neutral dog laws that penalize reckless owners and prevent future dog attacks from occurring.

The mission of Pinups is to save the lives of abused and abandoned pit bull-type dogs by raising funds with their nationally acclaimed Pinups for Pitbulls Calendar.

NJFAA's mission is to enrich pit bulls' lives through free vaccines along with aggressive spay and neuter.

The public is invited to an after party fundraiser from 6 to 9 p.m. at The Coastline Restaurant in Cherry Hill conveniently located off 295 at 1240 Brace Road with proceeds benefiting Pinups and NJFAA. Donation includes entertainment, munchies and $1 drinks. Tickets for both events are on sale now exclusively at www.beyondthemythmovie.com.

Movie – $12.50 in advance, $15.00 at the door. After Party – $7 advance, $10 at door. For information visit: www.beyondthemythmovie.com; www.pinupsforpitbulls.org or www.njafa.org.

We need drop spots for shelter drive

With less than two weeks to go until this year's Deck the Paws and Help a Collie drive kicks off, we're making one final plea to area businesses and offices. We need as many drop spots as possible. Right now we have perhaps a half-dozen, which isn't very many.

Drop spots are places we tell people to visit to make their donations to local animal shelters. It's easy to be a drop spot. Just e-mail alan@elauwit.com and agree to allow people to drop pet food, cat litter, toys and cleaning supplies in your lobby for a few weeks. When the drive is over, contact us again. We will pick up the items and take them to local shelters.

This year's drive begins after Thanksgiving, when donation tubs and flyers are delivered to the drop spots. It ends in mid-December.

A lot of people and organizations continue to struggle, and animal shelters certainly can be counted on that list. Our goal for the past several years is to ease the strain a bit when it comes to taking care of their furry guests. An extra bag of food – last year, cat food was in high demand – or jug of bleach really helps out when every nickel counts.

We hope to be able to deliver a lot of donations to shelters again this year, but it all starts with finding as many places as possible willing to help. Then, of course, it's up to people to be as generous as they can with their donations.

Time is running short. If you can spare a few square feet in your office, if you can rally your neighbors to put together a pile of supplies, anything, we need to hear from you.

The shelters, and the pets who live there, count on your kindness. Let's get the ball rolling this holiday season by helping out as many shelters and animals as possible through as many donation points as possible.

Supporting business in Voorhees

The Voorhees Economic Development Committee (EDC) is an advisory group established by the Township Committee whose mission is to attract businesses and industry to Voorhees and to create economic viability in terms of income growth and diversity while maintaining the personality and integrity of the community. It also aims to support the existing businesses and industry in their continued growth and prosperity.

The goals of the EDC are to encourage resident participation, facilitate revitalization, promote efforts to encourage and attract businesses, recommend legislation for economic development promotion and provide recommendations to the Township Committee, Planning Board and Zoning Board.

Last year, with the help of EDC, Voorhees became the first municipality in New Jersey to launch a geographic informa-looking to invest in our community. The website, www.voorheesprospector.com, is available as a free resource for businesses, corporate real estate professionals and the community.

The EDC is also taking an aggressive role in keeping businesses in town. In partnership with the Voorhees Business Association, the Voorhees Business Retention and Expansion Task Force has been formed. Its mission is to retain businesses and help them grow by developing innovative programs that bring the community and businesses together.

On behalf of the Township Committee, I would like to thank the EDC and the VBA for their efforts in making Voorhees a vibrant business community.
